EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

MR. PLATT is serene, and it is easy to understand why he is so. Public life for him has too much action, is too full of dramatic climaxes. Political death means peace. He wants it, and New York State evidently wants him to have it.

AFTER the protracted struggle over the Reading Railroad election, it is pleasant to see two such opponents as Mr. Gowen and Mr. Bond amicably arranging for the management of the company's business without the slightest feeling of bitterness. After his repeated victories in the courts, Mr. Bond can afford to be magnanimous, and no one that knows Mr. Gowen will be surprised at any extent of generosity with which he may be credited.

THE Richmond Whig wants to burn every copy of the revised New Testament after it has been looked at for curiosity's sake, and to stand by the venerable edition of our fathers and mothers,and be damned or saved by it with them. Considering that the old edition and the new alike condemn the repudiation of debts and endorse the commandment "Thou shalt not steal," it is surprising that the readjuster organ should not be willing to burn both.

So much attention has been directed to the movements of Mr. Conkling and his associates, that the public has not properly appreciated the very remarkable financial achievments of the Treasury Departments in virtually refunding the maturing five and six per cent. bonds at three and a-half per cent., in such a way as to keep them hereafter within easy reach of the Government. A lengthy article concerning this grand achievement will be found in another column.

THE New York Evening Post of Wednesday contained the following announcement:

The Evening Post has passed under the control of Mr. Carl Szhurz, Mr. Horace White and Mr. E. M. Godkin, who yesterday completed the purchase of a large majority of its stock. To-morrow Mr. Schurz will assume the editorial direction of this journal.

This is a strong "independent"team, and the Post may be relied on to furnish the thunder and lightning necessary to purify the political atmosphere whenever it becomes too heavy and foul.

THE antagonism in foreign policy between the governments of England and France at the present time is caused by the fact that while the French Republic has a definite line of action which is well known to most of the great Continental Powers, meets with their assent and is carried out with French vigor and promptness, the present Cabinet of England has no recognized line of action in foreign affairs, except to undo as far as possible all the work done by its predecessors. There is unmistakable evidence that the British people are getting rather sick of that kind of thing.

AN interesting conversation is said to have occurred between Postmaster-General James and Senator Logan recently. The Senator said: "Mr. James, I hope you will probe this Star Route corruption to the bottom. Never mind whom it touches; don't mind either those men who cry out that the investigation will hurt the party. Reform never ruins." To this the Postmaster-General replied quietly: "I will investigate regardless of consequences." The public did not need this assurance They have had full faith in Mr. James's thoroughness from the start, and if General Brady and Mr. Dorsey had any doubts on that point they have had them dispelled.

Retreating.

The New York Tribune has been out skirmishing, and comes to the conclusion that the Conkling forces are on the retreat. It says: Mr. Conkling's canvass visibly wanes and falters. He and his associates have been unable to get a majority of the Republican members to join in a call for any caucus before which known opponents of the Republican Administration can be candidates. Mr. Conkling's personal organ confesses his defeat. It prints interviews with members of the Legislature, one by one, showing that more than half of them are unwilling to vote for Messrs. Conkling and Platt, or to commit themselves to a caucus in which those persons may be nominated. Thereupon it says that the situation means a checkmate to Mr. Conkling, unless he can get rid of Mr. Platt and increase his strength by some compromise. This suggestion in the journal which has gone to the utmost length in publishing the most abusive things that Mr. Conkling's friends have ventured to say about the President, will hardly please the supporters of Mr. Platt. But there is reason to believe that it correctly represents the tendency of Mr. Conkling's schemes at this time. If he cannot get the "vindication" for which he asked, he is willing to seek a re-electtion by abandoning his associate and making a trade with somebody else.

Logically,this is a confession of defeat. Mr. Conkling made the fight at Washington: Mr. Platt only said "Me too." Mr. Conkling quarrelled first with the President, and afterward with the caucus of Republican Senators; Mr Platt merely said "Me too." If there is any reason for objecting to the re-election of either of these late Senators, it is a reason for objecting to the re-election of Mr. Conkling most. From him, and not from Mr. Platt, have come the threats of war against the Administration, and from him the most abusive attacks upon the President. If the State of New York is to send back Mr. Conkling at all to resume his warfare upon the President and the Republican Senators, and to disrupt and destroy the Republican party unless he can rule it, Mr. Platt would be a very proper and harmless associate to go with him.

Mr. Conkling, it may be inferred from the tone of observations in the papers devoted to his personal interest, would be willing to make a trade, if he could, with this or that other prominent citizen of the State. Excellent names have been mentioned, belonging to each of the two political parties. But it is doubtful if any bargains made at this stage of the game would be likely to hold. The people at large have begun to express their opinion, and the Republican members of the Legislature may not think it proper to vote for Mr. Conkling in any company or under any circumstances.

When the party Boss cannot get a majority of the Republican members to assent to a caucus in which he may be nominated, and is obliged to contemplate a trade with somebody his career as a Boss seems to be nearly at an end. If the members of the Legislature have the courage to represent their constituents faithfully for one week, Mr. Conkling will have no more power to harm anybody. The State of New-York can then be represented by sincere and hearty Republicans, who care more for principles than for spoils, and who will not desert their places whenever they fail to get all the patronage they demand.

PHOTOGRAPHY has again come to the front as an agent in criminal detective work. A man wounded to death and unable to speak, drew from his pocket the likeness of his assailant, and indicated the criminal by signs. It will be in order to parody Purch's famous advice against matrimony—"Advice to those about to murder—don't—be—photographed."

Trials of a Secretary.

While none are at liberty to suppose that Mr. Blaine is entirely indifferent to the comments of the press,it is quite likely that he is much less exalted or depressed in spirits by such praise and blame as the press deals out to him than the commentators themselves imagine. A good many years ago there arose a controversy between Mr. Blaine and Mr. Conkling, both at that time representing constituencies in the House. It was no doubt a heated controversy,in which each unbottled a great deal of sarcastic bitterness in speaking of the other. But there has never been any doubt in the minds of persons who were spectators and listeners on that occasion touching the result. Mr. Blaine came out of that contest a victor. There may have been a grudge stowed away somewhere, but it is safe to say that it was not stowed on Mr. Blaine's premises.

We have recalled this circumstance at this time because there seems to be a disposition abroad to credit Mr. Blaine with inspiring the quarrel between the President and Mr. Conkling. Mr. Blaine has a good memory, but it is not in the least vindictive. It is quite possible to suppose that he may not entertain a very warm regard for Mr. Conkling, and yet not entertain any active hostility toward him. It is not very likely that Mr. Blaine desires to revive a quarrel which arose and was settled more than fifteen years ago, and out of which, by common consent, he issued with flying colors.

As the most formidable competitor for the Chicago nomination, Mr. Blaine was selected by the President to fill the highest office in the Cabinet. The propriety of this selection was well nigh universally admitted. Whoever suppose that Mr. Blaine was selected because of any supposed antagonism to Mr. Conkling cannot be very well acquainted with Mr. Garfield. And whoever supposes that Mr. Blaine assumed the responsibilities of that office with any intention to wield it,or his influence, hostilely to Mr. Conkling cannot be very well acquainted with Mr. Blaine.

The quarrel between the President and Mr. Conkling was not precipitated by the preferment of Mr. Blaine. It was bound to come, and it would have come had Mr. Blaine remained in the Senate. Mr. Conkling has quarrelled with every President who has not deferred to him in shaping the policy of his administration. The quarrel is purely dynastic, and in no sense personal by first intentions. That Mr. Blaine, as a part of the administration,desires the defeat of Mr. Conkling is very probable. But that he proposed to take any part in the contest at Albany is too absurd to gain credence anywhere, unless it is among amateur political journalists.—North American.

HERE is the way it looks to the irreverent Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial: It is the duty of the Administration to the Republican party and the country to defeat this preposterous person.

There can be no peace with him until he is knocked down and dragged out, and if the country knew to-night thoroughly that the President would not show him or his any more favors, but would punish him and all whoare playing sycophant to him, his power would vanish, and he could walk on his toes all the way from the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the Post Office without disturbing any male citizen's peace of mind or raising a crowd of small boys. It is our estimation of this affair that the country is too large to crawl before one man.

FURTHER details of the terrible steamboat disaster in Canada serve to confirm fully the opinion that the upper works of the vessel were too flimsy to stand a sudden strain. How many of these pasteboard death-traps are navigating our own waters is a question the public would like to have answered, now that the excursion season is at hand.

A Great Financial Achievement.

One order, issued by the Administration a little over two weeks ago, has saved the country over $4,000,000 yearly. The honor of this grand achievement is so great that the President and all his Cabinet, who were consulted before this step was taken, may share it without detracting from the praise justly due to the Secretary of the Treasury. No other Minister of Finance in any other country or in any age, has ever been able to make loans amounting to more than $290,000,000 within nine business days. The feat will probably long remain unrivalled—the marvellous highwater mark of national credit and fiscal wisdom. The result could not have been attained had not the credit of the Nation been unsurpassed. Neither could it have been attained had the plans of the Administration been less than wonderfully shrewd, practical and courageous. A great nation and a wise government were both needed to make it possible to to borrow over thirty millions a day for nine days.

Says the New York Tribune: The complete success of Secretary Windom's plan was virtually reached on Monday. When business closed on that day over $50,000,000 of the five per cents had been sent in for continuance, but a few of them had failed to arrive, and the full amount was not received until Tuesday. But there had also been forwarded, during the same nine days, over $30,000,000 of six per cents, leaving only $16,000,000 of those bonds to be paid. The amount of five per cents yet to be received under the terms of the call issued two weeks ago must be less than $106,000,000, and though the coupons bonds are widescattered, it is not likely that many days will elapse before the operation will be substantially completed. When Mr. Windom issued his call on this afternoon of the 12th inst., there were outstanding $450,081,100 of the five per cents, of which $10,257,400 were covered by the call issued in February, and therefore could not be extended. It has been estimated that about half of the called bonds at that time unredeemed were coupons; if so the remaining five per cents were about $315,000,000 of registered and about $124,824,600 of coupon bonds. There now remain only $65,000,000 of registered bonds, which, in the language of the Secretary's circular, are "reserved with a view of their payment from the surplus revenues." The registered bonds suddenly dropped 4 per cent in market value on Tuesday, as soon as it was known that no more of them could be continued at 3½ per cent. If the estimate of the amount of coupon bonds which were uncalled on the 12th is correct the amount now remaining cannot be more than $106,000,000, because over $12,500,000 coupon fives had been sent in as early as Monday night, and they temporarily command a price which can hardly fail to bring them into the market rapidly, even if they are held by persons who do not wish to obtain registered three and a half per cents. Since many of these bonds are held in Europe, and holders were allowed until July 1 to present them for continuance, the precise amount of these to be paid will not be known until early in July. But it is already certain that the amount will not be large. The Treasury will get rid of all its five and six per cent. bonds without being obliged to use more money than its surplus revenue for the current year.

The magnificent success of Secretary Windom, therefore, avoids the issue and sale of any new four or four and a half per cent bonds. This is exceedingly fortunate. It would not have been a popular step to sell four per cents at this time, however large the price obtained, because an additional portion of the debt would thereby have been placed beyond reach of payment for many years. Hereafter the surplus revenue can be used until 1891, if it is deemed best in paying off the 3½ per cents which are payable at the pleasure of the Government, or, if the condition of the market should rena purchase of the four or four and a half per cents more advantageous, that course can be taken. For the next nine years an average of $60,000,000 a year can be applied to the reduction of the debt, without paying more than par for any bond retired, if that course is preferrred. These splendid results show what the Administration is doing for the public welfare. When any of the politicians at Albany are minded to make war upon the Administration, it would be well for them to consider what hold recent events have given the Administration upon public confidence.

THE Pittsburgh Christian Advocate does not take kindly to the revised version of the New Testament. It thinks too many changes have been made for the mere sake of change, and holds that inasmuch as regards doctrine and duty the old is admitted to be as good as the new, the work of the committee is unimportant and should not have been undertaken at all. In regard to the business feature of the revision, it says:

"The English committee seem to have an eye to business fully as much as is meet. They have so ordered matters that they can control the first sales, which promise to be enormous in America as well as in England—a sharp business practice which is unseemly in connection with the Word of God. But it is a trade which they will be unable to engross long. Our own publishing houses, which are unrivalled in enterprise, will soon place editions upon the market as accurate and complete as the Oxford issue. If our readers wait for these they will encourage American industry and lose nothing.

BOSTON has taken up the World's Fair project with an amount of Yankee energy and shrewdness that promises to make it a success. It is not altogether agreeable for us here in New-York to think that all the great exhibitions in America seem destined to be held in second-rate cities because there is not sufficient practical public spirit in the Metropolis to raise the money needed for such an enterprise and to give it an efficient, harmonious preliminary organization. But this we must admit to be the fact,unwelcome though it be. There will be no excuse, however, for New-York's playing the dog in the manger. If Boston succeeds where we failed let us give her the credit she deserves and the cooperation which it will be for our credit and interest to give. New-York has had her chance for a Fair and missed it through the bungling and self-seeking of those having the scheme in charge and the lack of interest on the part of the wealthy classes. Now let Boston try what she can do.—N. Y. Tribune.

THERE is so much disaffection in Bulgaria that in three of the leading cities martial law has been proclaimed. If this kind of thing continues, Russia or some other of the European Powers will be for interfering in the interest of peace and order, and then the Eastern question will all have to be gone over again.

A Doctor's Liability

It is related, as a legend of the medical fraternity, that the Emperor Augustus was once so highly pleased at a cure effected in himself by his doctor, Antomus Musa, that he raised that gentleman to the rank of knight, and relieved the whole profession from the burdens of taxation.

Probably at no time before or since that event has the lot of the physician been such a happy one. In the earlier days of Rome the practice of medicine was despised and confined to the humbler ranks of society and to slaves. Not until the influence of Grecian civilization made itself felt in the Roman capital did physicians gain honor or standing.

In the middle ages the calling suffered a relapse, to speak medically. Surgery was in ill repute, and Sprengel tells us that in Germany no artisan would employ a young man as an apprentice without a certificate that he was born in marriage of honest parents, and came of a family in which were found neither barbers, bathers nor "skinners," as surgeons were called.

Even at the present day, although the meritorious claims of the medical practitioner have been recognised and an honorable social status awarded him, his mind is not at rest. The advancement and refinement of ideas have begotten deeper anxieties and a feeling of responsibility. So jealously does the law guard the lives and persons of the people, that every time the physician writes a prescription, or the surgeon makes an incision, he takes his purse, his liberty, or perhaps his life in his hand. The risk is not all on the patient, despite the popular impression that the only pocket-book to be depleted or the only life liable to be sacrificed, is that of the sick man.

The engineers and firemen of the passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley Railroad are again petitioning the officers of the road to put on men to wipe off their engines. They claim that the additional labor of making their long runs is too much for a day's work.

John Roach has recently purchased of ex-Mayor John Larkin, Jr., the old boat yard of Wilson,Williamson & Co., of Chester, containing seven acres, for which he pays $12,000. The property is said to be the finest one on the river, being particularly adapted for manufacturing purposes.

A wandering troupe of tramps, numbering twenty-five, encamped near Tyrone on Tuesday,where they were graciously allowed to rest their weary bones by the citizens. In return for the forbearance shown them they made a raid on a house during the night and carried off a lot of clothing and $70 in money.

The Board of School Directors and auditors of Douglass township,Berks county, are having a fight over the simple question of where the meeting shall be held to audit the accounts. The directors appointed a meeting at a school-house on a certain day and met, but there were no auditors, as the latter gentlemen had fixed on another day on which the meeting should be held in another part of the township. Both sides have secured counsel, and threaten war.

A singular action has been commenced in Pittsburg by the wife of an operative in one of the iron mills against three members of the Amalgamated Association, who are charged with conspiracy. The prosecutrix claims that because her husband had been promoted in the mill in which he worked, the defendant caused a strike, through which the furnace was shut down and he was compelled to give up his situation. The case is exciting considerable interest, and its decission will in a great measure define the power and responsibilities of the association.

"Now, I tell you, there's nothing particular about me," said the fat man by the stove. "I ain't one of those kind who is always finding fault with my victuals and that sort of thing. So long's a meal is well cooked and served hot, and there's enough of it, and it's nice and rich, I'm satisfied. I don't go growling around the house like some folks. I'm one of those men who can put up with anything in the shape of eating, as long's it's good and nice."

Poetry.

Good-Night.

Good-night! A word so often said,
The heedless mind forgets its meaning;
'Tis only when some heart is dead,
On which our own was leaning,
We hear in saddening music roll
The last "good-night" along the soul.

Good-night! In tones that never die
It peals along the quickening ear,
And tender gales of memory
Forever wait it near,
When stilled the voice—oh, crush of pain—
That ne'er shall breathe "good night" again.

"Good-night! It mocks us from the grave,
It overleaps that strange world's bound
From whence there flows no backward wave;
It calls from out the ground,
On every side, around, above,
"Good-night, good-night" to life and love.

Good-night! Oh, wherefore fades away
The light that lived in that dear world?
Why follows that good-night no day?
Why are our souls so stirred?
O, rather say, dull brain, once more
Good night! thy time of toil is o'er.

Good-night! Now cometh gentle sleep,
And tears that fall like welcome rain,
Good-night! Oh, holy, blest and deep
The rest that follows pain:
How should we reach God's upper-light
If life's long day had no "Good-night?"

Our Story Teller.

Tried in the Balance.

'Ella, hereafter, when we have company and you are asked to go to the piano, it is my desire that you shall excuse yourself. I care not what excuse you make so that you do not play before company.'

The young girl to whom this caution—or really it was a command—was given, was a mild-eyed, golden haired, dimple cheeked laughter-loving beauty, with substance enough of frame to give her a vigorous and healthful look, and yet not enough to destroy the fairy-like grace and comeliness of her faultless form. She had seen eighteen years of life; and those years had brought to her not much of the joy and sunshine which had been the lot of others whom she had known. Ella Maybright was her name; an orphan—only child of a distant relative of Mrs. Tamworth, the lady who had just spoken to her-and with whom she had found a home. But it was not a blessed home. Far from it. Mrs. Tamworth had taken her 'out of pure charity,' as she expressed it; and be sure the poor girl 'worked her passage.' She was maid to the mistress of the house; and a slave to the mistress of the mistress of the house—and the mistress of the mistress was her own and only daughter, Isabel. The master of the establishment was Judge Addison Tamworth, an Associate Justice of the Superior Court—very just, very honorable, very proud; but not possessed of very much of this world's goods. He was not in debt, but there was a mortgage on his homestead which galled him not a little.

But—mercy! the pride of the Judge is as nothing compared with the pride of his wife and daughter. He could speak with a mechanic, but not they. And they were the spenders of the money.

However, Mrs. Tamworth bade her husband have no fears—to borrow no trouble.

'Wait until Isabel is married!' And having said this, she would look as though the whole question of future weal and prosperity was forever solved and settled.

And we may as well state here, as anywhere, that both the mother and the daughter had set their hearts upon a certain Richard Olney, a young gentleman of four or five-and-twenty, who had recently followed his father by the death of the latter, in the sole and unincumbered ownership of the extensive Machine Works and Edge-Tool Factory, in that flourishing town. Really, and truly, the owner of those establishments owned nearly half of the village; and all that Richard Olney now owned, being taxed on almost two millions of real and personal estate.

It was an extraordinary case of wealth in the hands of a single youth; but let it be understood that Richard had been reared in the business, and that he was master of every part of it; and all this in addition to a liberal education in all that goes to make up an educated man. He spoke French fluently; could read German freely, and speak it well enough to be plainly understood; and he was a dear lover of music, and a very fair musician.

And now we come back to the beginning. It had been at the request of Richard Olney, on the previous evening, that Ella Maybright had sat down at the piano. Miss Isabel had been furious; but she had been very careful to show none of it to Richard. Ah! let her alone for that! She knew that he was warm, and generous-hearted, and exceedingly tender and sympathetic in his feelings. So careful was she not to expose herself in the business, that she asked mamma to speak with Ella.

'Your playing, in contrast with Isabel's is too ridiculous, child,' the lady went on. 'If you could heard Mr. Olney laughing in his sleeve, you would have been ashamed of yourself.'

'Did Mr. Olney laugh at me, Aunt?' asked the girl, flushing and quivering while the moisture gathered in her azure eyes in spite of her.

'Ella! I wish you would not call me Aunt! I am not— There now don't go to making a fool of yourself. You may call me Aunt as much as you please, when we are alone; but Isabel don't like to have you do it before visitors; because you know,—your mother was only a second cousin of mine. And do you know, I think your mother did a very foolish thing when she spent her money in teaching you French and music and all that stuff. If you had learned to do all sorts of housework—considering your position in life—it would have been better.'

'Mrs. Tamworth,' spoke the girl, with strength and spirit, and with becoming pride, 'in what part of housework am I ignorant? I have superintended all your cooking for more than a year: I have taken care of your wardrobe; I have made your husband's shirts; I have—'

'O! hush! Foolish girl! you will worry the life out of me! Go now and see to the dinner. I expect the judge will bring company home with him, and I want everything au fait as the French say.'

At that moment Isabel Tamworth entered the room. She was certainly a beauty—regal and queenly. She was twenty years of age; tall and imposing; with a face like the face of the Hellenic Juno; hair very dark luxuriant; eyes dark, brilliant, and sparkling; with an air of hauteur, inherited from her father, overshadowing all. Yes—she was a beauty; and she was fairly educated; and she could be sparkling and as bright, and could talk sentiment and poetry, to the satisfaction of even Richard Olney; and no man loved true sentiment and sweet poetry better. As she came into the room Ella left.

'Mamma,'—as soon as the poor relative was out of hearing,' have you spoken with Ella about the piano, as I told you?'

'Yes, my dear.'

'How did she take it?'

'O,—I don't think she cared. She didn't care so much for that as she did for my telling her not to call me Aunt. But never mind, she'll forget all about it before the day is done.'

'Let her forget not as she pleases, it is time she knew her place. We have been making altogether to much of her. Mercy sake! Mr. Olney seemed to regard her as one of our family. He asked me more questions about her than I knew how to answer. Hereafter she must be kept out of the way. Really she's got a certain style of beauty which some soft pated people might like; and the rabble might enjoy the simple, homely music she plays; but we don't want it in our drawing room.—Ha! what's that as I live, I believe it's a beggar coming right up to our garden door!—And a boy with him! I believe he's playing blind! I'll give him a greeting that will start him another direction. The impudence of the wretch!'

* * * * *

On this same afternoon Richard Olney, in the office of the great machine works was closing up a contract with a New York party for the manufacture of half a million dollars worth of machinery. He was a remarkable man. Not many at that age, could have carried clearly in their heads the amount of business that he carried in his; and yet he did it easily and pleasantly, and found ample time for much of social recreation, and mental enjoyment and culture beside. He was a handsome man; large and strong; with a face that betrayed not only surpassing intellect, but robust and vimmy health. Truly, he was a happy man; and now, in the morning of his manhood's life, he was looking about to see how he could round out his happiness by securing a fond and faithful wife.

Isabel Tamworth had been pointed out to him as one who would suit him. There were those who thought she was just the woman to preside over his home. He had made her accquaintance, and certainly, she had done all she could to please him. He thought her very beautiful and accomplished; and he liked her; but, somehow, he could not fall in love with her. He had come a great deal nearer to falling in love with the mild-eyed, gentle, dimpled-cheeked Ella Maybright, though he had not acknowledged it to himself.

On this afternoon Richard Olney closed up with the New York man, and then went with him to the railway station, and saw him safely off; after which he took it into his head to stroll up towards the dwelling of Judge Tamworth. He might find the young ladies disengaged, and enjoy a few moments' chat. He did not think of Isabel alone. The figure of the other, if the truth could be reached, would have been found nearest to his heart, though he had never willingly given her the precedence in his thoughts.

He approached the Judge's mansion by the garden, thinking to apply at the double glass door that opened out from the rear drawing-room. He had just reached the corner of the house, where grew a thick clump of lilacs, when he saw a poor blind beggar, led by a little boy, ascending the piazza steps. He thought he would draw himself into the shadow, out of sight, until the poor unfortunate had gone; or, until he could find opportunity to hail him and offer him help.

He heard the man knock, and in a moment saw Isabel come forth upon the threshold. He could just see her in profile.

'Who are you? What do you want here?' Isabel asked, in a tone that struck to Olney's heart like an ice-bolt.

'Lady,' answered the man, lifting his hat from a head that was but slightly clothed with silvery hair, 'will you give me a morsel of food? I ask no more.'

'Food! We don't keep a tavern here! And why didn't you go to the servants' door? Didn't you know any better than to come here, to this place?'

'Pardon, lady. I am blind, as you may see; and the boy who leads me did not know any better.'

'Look you, my man: If you are blind, and a pauper, why aint you in the alms house, where you belong?'

'Good lady, you are severe. The alms-house is my home; but I have come out, on this beautiful day—this good boy consenting to guide me—for which Heaven bless him!—I have come out to enjoy the glories of a nature which I can feel, though I see it not. And I walked further than I thought, and becoming hungered—'

'O! bother! Go and talk your rigmarole to somebody else. Go to the servants' door if you want food.' And the door was slammed in the poor blind man's face.

Richard Olney stood aghast,—stupefied and confounded. He watched the man, with tears welling out from his sightless eyes, tenderly led by the boy, make his way down the steps; and he was turning to go the way by which he had come, when a fairy-like form came out from a doorway beneath the piazza—a kitchen door—and a soft, small, white hand was laid upon the old man's arm.

'Dear old friend! Don't go away. Come with me. I will give you food, and let you rest. You made a mistake. They don't like to have strangers come to the door above. But never mind. Come.'

And Ella Maybright led the poor man into the clean, airy porch, and set for him an easy chair, and a stool for the boy; and then she went and got food for them, with a bowl of milk; and she drew a seat for herself, and talked with the man while he ate. And her words, like sweet music, made him happy, so that he forgot the harsh and unkind treatment that had gone before. The gentle, true hearted girl made it summer-time for him; and gave him to feel how beautiful the world was when the storm and tempest were absent, and the sunlight fell unclouded. And when he had eaten, and rested, Ella went out and plucked for him a bunch of roses, and put them into his hand, with a prayer and a blessing. Tears were again upon the furrowed cheeks, but, ah! not such tears as those poor, blind eyes had shed before!

And then Richard Olney crept out from his biding place, and glided away, seriously pondering upon what he had seen and heard.

* * * *

Two days after the visit of the blind man, after an early dinner, Judge Tamworth and his wife, and Isabel, went in the large carriage to visit some friends in an adjoining town, and to spend the evening.

Shortly after dark, on that same day, the door-bell was rung very modestly; and presently a servant came and informed Miss Ella that a gentleman wished to see her. He was in the front drawing-raom. She went in, and found Richard Olney.

'Mr. Olney! The folks are all away, sir, and will not return until late.'

'My dear Miss Maybright,' said the gentleman, advancing, and extending his hand, while a look came over his face, and shone out from his eyes, that caused Ella's poor foolish heart to stand still—'since I did not come to see those that are gone I shall not grieve. I called, if you will permit me to say so, on purpose to see you; and, my dear girl, as the opportunity is not often afforded like unto this I must improve it, and make the most of my time. It may be that the weal or woe of a lifetime is to hinge upon this hour. Do you give me permission to stop?'

Poor, foolish heart! She knew now why she had so often felt a sudden thrill, and a palpitation, when Richard Olney had looked into her face with his steadfast, honest gaze and told her how much her playing had pleased him.

But he held her hand, and would not let it go until she had answered him: and before he left the house she had answered him another question—answered it with her head pillowed upon his bosom, his strong arms holding her fast, and his earnest eyes gazing down upon her, radiant with the light of the first great love of his manhood's life!

We might make a long story of the surprise, the chagrin, the wrath, and the terrible disappointment of both Isabel and her mother when they came to know that their housedrudge had given herself to be the wife of Richard Olney; but there is no need. It can be imagined as well as we could tell it. Our story was to be of that change Trial in the Balance by which the man was enabled to select the pure gold and cast away the dross; and be sure he had made no mistake.

Isabel Tamworth never knew 'by what art' her 'insignificant rival' had captivated Richard Olney, whom she had thought possessed of good sense. She declared, at the outset, that she would never visit the newly wedded pair; but when, in course of time, she found that the home of the wealthy millowner was becoming the Mecca of all lovers of good society and patrons of art, and that his wife was being acknowledged on all hands as the Queen of Beauty, and a true exemplar of all the social and domestic virtues, she was willing to swallow her bitterness, and join the throng that basked in the sunshine which she could no longer dispute.

Editor's ranches are never entered by thieves. The only thief who ever tried it got a brass-handled butter knife, a counterfeit half dollar and three years in the penitentiary.

—Sounds of youthful voices in song and social tete-a-tete emenated from the open windows and doors of the cosy residence of Mr. F. P. Green, on Linn street, on Wednesday night last. The occasion of all this merriment was the birthday celebration of that gentleman's twin daughters, Misses Emma and Mary, and it is said to have been a very pleasant affair.

—Between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock, on Tuesday evening, the residence of H. A. McKee, Esq., in Spring township, was entered by thieves, during the absence of the family. $14.00 in money, a gold bracelet and several other articles of jewelry were stolen from a bureau drawer in an up-stairs apartment. Who the house-breakers were is not known to a certainty, but suspicion rests on parties who do not live a hundred miles from the scene of the theft.

—Ex-President Hayes and Col. A. K. McClure are among the distinguished visitors expected at the new Mountain House, at Cresson, when opened for the season. This will afford the Colonel an excellent opportunity for imparting to the ex-President some of his new "reform" ideas. It is possible, however, that he will not take advantage of it.

—We have received from the music publishing house of Lee & Walker, Philadelphia, a copy of "Colonel Thomas A. Scott's Funeral March." The music is beautiful, and the effect of its rendition striking. An excellent portrait of Col. Scott appears on the title page, and on the reverse a biographical sketch of his life is given. The march should, and no doubt will, have an extensive sale in this State.

—A correspondent from Loveville sends us a communication occupying one side of a sheet of paper note size. In it the word "corn" appears frequently, but the connecting words are so much Greek to us. The only inference we can draw from the letter is that some one has been imposed upon in a corn transaction, but this is merely guess work on our part. Our correspondent must be more painstaking with his chirography.

A Tyrone Mystery.

The body of a drowned man was found in Bald Eagle creek, at Tyrone, on Monday afternoon. He was found with his face partly covered, and apparently must have been dead several days. He was dressed in a good suit of clothes, dark in color, paper collar, white shirt, black necktie, good new button gaiters and brown hose, and black slouch hat, which latter was found on the bank a few yards from where the body was found. The body has since been recognized as that of a man named Dubois, a silversmith of Altoona. The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Sun says: "When this gentleman landed here parties who saw him said that he had plenty of money and in the estimation of a good many who saw the body when taken from the water, the man never died from drowning, as his body was not swollen a particle. There is something very mysterious surrounding the whole affair, and no effort should be spared in ferreting it out and probing it to the bottom."

The Lord's Prayer.

The Lord's prayer, in the revised New Testament, ends with the expression, 'deliver us from the evil one,' which, in our opinion, spoils the whole thing. To us the closing words of the prayer was one of its most beautiful parts. In order that our readers, or those who have not secured a copy of the revised edition, may see how the "revisors" have tampered with the prayer, we publish below, side by side, the old and new version:

NEW VERSION.	OLD VERSION.
Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us ours debt, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. [Omit the rest.]	Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory forever. Amen.

A Hot House Demanded.

We have frequently heard the question asked, Why doesn't Bellefonte have a hot house of her own? instead of being dependent upon Lock Haven and Williamsport for flowers. We, too, have wondered at this. There is no community in the State where plants and flowers are more appreciated than in this place, and yet when required, in large quantities, for weddings, receptions, etc., the parties desiring them are compelled to send off thirty or forty miles out to have their orders filled. A green house, large enough to supply Bellefonte, can be built and maintained at little expense, and in the opinion of many of our citizens would prove a paying investment to the proprietor. By all means let us have a green house.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Henry Miller died suddenly Tuesday, May 24, at 7 o'clock a. m., of heart disease, at his residence in Spring township, aged 64 years, 6 months and 4 days. Monday afternoon Mr. Miller was driving his team about town, apparently in good health, but towards evening began to complain of illness, and continued to grow worse until his death. Deceased was a much respected citizen, and a prominent member of the Odd Fellows Lodge, having been a charter member.

SNOW SHOE INTELLIGENCE.

Man Killed in the Mines—Berwind, White & Co.'s Operations.

Monday morning about 10 o'clock a man named Armstrong was killed in No. 9 mine by a heavy fall of coal. He had undermined a large lot, when about five tons fell, killing him instantly. He had only been hereabout five weeks. He leaves a small family, and has been living with a son. He was buried yesterday in Askey's cemetery, near Snow Shoe.

Berwind, White & Co. are moving their coke breaker from Bellefonte to this place, erecting it near the coke ovens. It will be run by the engine that pumps water for the ovens. They intend shipping the broken coke from here instead of Bellefonte, as heretofore. This firm is now shipping from five to six hundred tons of coal and twenty to thirty tons of coke daily. In the course of two or three months they will be operating a new mine known as No. 10, from which they expect to ship a large quantity of coal. Their new office will be completed in a short time, and will be one of the handsomest in the county. It is two stories high, with two rooms on each floor—one on the lower floor for general office and the others for private use. The rooms on the second floor will be used for sleeping rooms.

This firm intends building forty or fifty new houses for the purpose of increasing their mining force. A number of them will be built near Nos. 4 and 10 mines, and others near town. Charles McAfferty, of Bellefonte, is at present engaged in repairing some of their mine houses.

The railroad company is repairing that "excuse for a depot." It is looking some better, viewed from a distance, but won't bear close inspection. Agents Stonerod and Foller are as happy as kings, under the impression that they are getting a new depot. It's like the boy's new coat—made from father's old one.

It's worth a visit to this city to see D. P. Peters flip around with his 2:40 team. He thinks that fast time. Well, perhaps it is for this place.

John Uzzle is at present applying his attention to the wants of two small cubs, and judging from his appearance on a warm day it is requiring all his ingenuity to learn what they can best eat and grow fat on.

Mrs. Law, wife of Superintendent Law, of the Bellefonte Car Works, is at present stopping at the Mountain House, and seems highly delighted with Snow Shoe.

Thomas Blair and Wm. Dyke, of Pittsburgh, are now engaged on an experiment with iron ore, and are using one B. W. & Co.'s coke ovens for that purpose. M.

Spring Mills Items.

Corn about all planted. A few of our afternoon farmers have not yet finished, however; it is still time for them, as they always have a little season of their own.

Last week we had plenty of rain and some cold days. The showers were good for grass and grain, but had a tendency to retard the growth of corn and oats.

The pesky grasshopper has again put in its appearance, and, as usual, is attacking all the grass, etc., that comes in its way. In some localities there are only a few, while in others figures would fail to do the number justice. Farmers say they have a fine show for a good clover crop, and if not destroyed by these 'hoppers would have hay in abundance.

Dr. Frank Vanvalzah has added to the appearance of his home by erecting a handsome yard and garden fence, and Davy, the brusher, has supplied it with a good coat of paint, generally known as whitewash.

Our new merchants, Whitmore & Co., are doing a thriving business. They are, for a fact, offering great inducements. All who want bargains had better go and get them while their "new broom sweeps clean."

We think the engineer on the evening train does a little more whistling than is called for in a place like this. Such continued screeching is considered a nuisance, and always has a tendency to frighten teams from the rural districts.

Some of the material is on the ground for the new hotel. The site selected is a fine one. The building will be 48x100 feet in size, and its elevation will make it an ornament to our town.

Several new houses have been put up, and a number more to be erected yet, makes business brisk, at least in the building line.

We are informed that Prof. Rearick and lady will locate at this place next fall. Hope they will, for with Frank as a pianist, and Flora as a vocalist, our musical circle would be greatly strengthened.

The steam saw mill of Philip Dale, located some three miles northwest of this place, is shipping three and four car loads of lumber every week to the east.

The election of Prof. D. M. Wolf to the office of County Superintendent seems to meet the approval of all who look at the matter aright. There never was a man elected in Centre county with more honor than Prof. Wolf, he having never asked for the office, and had it not been for his friends he never would have been a candidate. Truly, this time the office hunted the man, and not the man the office.

ALL THE NEWS OF THE DAY IS GIVEN in the REPUBLICAN.

Miscellaneous.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitized photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

FRANK P. BLAIR,
Brockerhoff House Block.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM
OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure

For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. is nature's greatest remedy. Dr. Hartman prescribed it to 40,000 patients, all of whom recovered or were much improved.

PERUNA can be taken by every one—the young, the middle-aged, the old, the babe and the mother.

PERUNA always agrees with the patient. It cleanses the system of all its impurities, tones the stomach, regulates the heart, unlocks the secretions of the liver, strengthens the nerves and invigorates the brain.

PERUNA is the greatest appetizer, makes blood, and to the weary and tired from the toils and cares of the day it gives sweet and refreshing sleep.

PERUNA should be taken by every body before each meal, when well, to prevent sickness; when sick, to cure. $1000 will be paid for a case it will not cure or help.

PERUNA is composed of all vegetable ingredients; each one a great remedy in itself. (See pamphlet).

It is pleasant to the taste, and will help the stomach to digest any article of food.

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

No preparation has ever performed such marvelous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and lung disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

It Cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs, Ringbones, and all similar Blemishes, and Removes the Bunch without Blistering.

For Man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best, Liniments ever discovered.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is the only positive cure known, and to show what this remedy will do, we give here as a sample of cases cured by it a statement which was GIVEN UNDER OATH!

To Whom it may Concern: In 1875 I treated with Kendall's Spavin Cure a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he has never been lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated them with Kendall's Spavin Cure. R. A. GAINES.
Enosburg Falls, Vt., Feb. 25th, 1879.
Sworn and subscribed to before me this 25th day of Feb., A. D. 1879.
JOHN G. JENNE,
Justice of the Peace.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best Liniment ever used for any deep-seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for CORNS, BUNIONS, FROST-BITES or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply be ause it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for BEAST is good for MAN, and we know from experience that KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE can be used on a child one year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Read below of its wonderful effects as a liniment for the human family:

HEMATITE, Mo., Aug. 28, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS: I am so overjoyed in view of the result of an application of your Kendall's Spavin Cure that I feel that I ought for humanity's sake publish it to the world. About thirty-five years ago, while riding a young ugly horse, I was injured in one of my testicles, and from that time to three weeks ago a slow but constant enlargement has been the result, giving me a great amount of trouble, almost entirely preventing me from horseback riding, which was my usual way of traveling. I saw a notice of your Kendall's Spavin Cure; never once thought of it for anything except for horses, but after receiving the medicine and reading over what it was good for, feeling terribly exercised about my difficulty, for I had consulted many physicians and none gave me any specific but when it could be endured no longer to remove it with the knife. I applied your Kendall's Spavin Cure as an experiment, and it was so painful in its application that I concluded not to repeat it, and thought no more about it until near a week, and lo and behold one-half of the size was gone. With joy I could hardly believe it. I immediately applied it again, and have made in all about one-half dozen applications, running over a space of two weeks, and the terrible enlargement is almost entirely gone, in view of which I cannot express my feelings of delight. It has been a Godsend to me; may He send to others with like troubles.

JOHN RICE,
Pastor of Hematite Congregational Church.

P. S.—You are at liberty to put this in any shape you may please. I am not ashamed to have my name under, over or by the side of it.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Senatorial Strife.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Specials from Albany are of the most conflicting character, as instance the following:

The Commercial says: "The half-breeds are despondent and Woodin is to be put forward to-day to make a speech in the Senate, in the desperate hope of improving their prospects. The friends of Conkling are doing their work quietly and well. You may discredit all reports as to the failure of the Republicans to obtain sufficient signatures to their call to compel a caucus. In spite of the Senate Caucus Committee's revolutionary action they have already got more than enough signatures, but they desire to leave the half breeds with only a corporal's guard at their backs."

The Express' correspondent says: "The complexion of affairs at this writing leads me to think that before Friday morning Conkling will withdraw from the contest, upon the plea of a desire to harmonize differences in the party. The true reason is his strength is rapidly waning."

The Post vouches for the truth of the story concerning hot words between Conkling and Arthur.

From the Seat of War.

ALBANY, May 27.—Everything is quiet concerning the Senatorial question. The stalwarts will not talk on the subject and the administration men are more confident than ever that Conkling will not be elected. A petition twenty feet long, addressed to Assemblymen Armstrong and Roberts, of Oneida county, arrived by special messenger and was taken to the Vice President's room, where it was handed to Mr. Conkling. It was in favor of the re-election of the two Senators. The report of trouble between Conkling and Arthur is pronounced an invention of the enemy. They were walking up Broadway this morning arm in arm, chatting together.

Canada's Calamity.

TORONTO, May 27.—The official papers bearing on the inspection of the steamer Victoria, which collapsed near London, were forwarded to Ottawa to-day by Samuel Risley, Government Steamboat Inspector of this city. He looked on her as a safe boat for river traffic. She was inspected twice last year—the first time in May, and again in October. A visit to the scene shows the Victoria to be a complete wreck, being literally broken into splinters.

A CITY OF THE DEAD.

To-day London is a city of the dead. Business is practically suspended, excepting such branches as are connected with the arrangement of the funeral matters. In the poorer quarters of the city the authorities have been giving away coffins. Medical men have nobly responded to the calls made upon them. The Mayor and municipal authorities have put forth every effort to meet the emergency, and so far as money and friendly aid can mitigate grief nothing will be lacking. The citizens were shocked at the sight of fair women and tender children being carried throuth the public streets in trays or in carts, but it was not until a wholesale order had been given by the mayor that sufficient pine could be found to enclose the remains of the lost ones.

THE INTENSE GLOOM.

of the community here to-day is only relieved by the brightness of the sun. From an early hour the bells have been tolling and funeral processions wending through every street on the way to cemeteries. All business places are closed, and the city wears an aspect of Sabbath, with a mighty soleminity pervading all. No one speaks or thinks of anything else than the great calamity, and it has had a paralyzing effect upon all classes of citizens. It has been decided to erect a memorial in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. All this day one could not walk a block without meeting some solemn procession bearing away additional dead. In several cases entire families with one or two exceptions have been wiped out, for instance that of Mr. Jos. Coughlin, whose children and grand-children, numbering five, are lying dead in his house.

Fatal Kerosene.

PITTSBURGH, May 27.—Yesterday afternoon the kerosene can again played a prominent part as an instrument of death and disaster in this community. Five dwelling houses were destroyed and two women and a child fatally burned A fireman was seriously injured by an explosion of chemicals in a Babcock fire extinguisher.

A Girl Shoots Her Mother.

CINCINNATI, May 29.—Advises from Cochran, Georgia, reprt that in Laurens county, about twenty-five miles east of Cochran, Mrs. Tiny Garrett, wife of a respectable farmer, told her daughter to prepare dinner. The daughter refused. Then Mrs. Garrett said she would inform Mr. Garrett and he would whip the daughter when he came home to dinner. A quarrel and struggle followed, in which the girl used a shot-gun, firing both barrels, one of which took effect in Mrs. Garrett's head, inflicting a mortal wound. A little brother struck the gun, preventing a second shot being effective. Mr. Garrett returned and chastised the daughter so severely that it is believed she cannot recover. Both mother and daughter are members of the church.

The War on Blaine.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Much has been said here to-day relative to certain charges which have been made in New York papers, and which has for several days been floating in the air, connecting Secretary Blaine's name with the Star-route frauds. It is alleged that the Secretary's visit to New York was solely for the purpose of hushing certain voices that were likely to be raised against him with dangerous information. It has been hinted by certain of Conkling's friends that at the proper time strong evidence to show that Blaine has been deep in sundry jobs and intimate with several rings and monopolies would be forthcoming. It is also alleged that Butler, who has espoused the cause of Conkling, is possessed of damaging testimony against Mr. Blaine, which he will let fly in good time, and that certain letters also compromising Mr. Blaine will be shortly published. Post-master General James said to-day that there was absolutely nothing in the Star-route matter that connected itself with Mr. Blaine, and it was doubtful if he was more than aware of the existence of the rumors. At the White House, and in fact all over town, the rumors are looked upon as simply the vaporings which usually accompany a political storm.

Floating in a Creek.

PERTH AMBOY. N. J., May 29.—The body of Daniel Matthews, missing since Sunday last, was found in the creek near Pine Bridge yesterday. It is supposed that Matthews fell off the bridge. The drowned man leaves a large family.

A Deadlock for Weeks Expected in Regard to the Election.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 29.—By three o'clock yesterday the Delevan and other hotels presented a comparatively deserted appearance. Mr. Conkling and his associates left on the 2-40 P. M. train for New York, where it is said the canvass will be continued. It is said that they will return here on Monday and remain during the expected long seige next week and the week after, as it is now understood that it will take weeks to break the dead lock. No change whatever has taken place in the situation. Each section claims about half of the Republican members, and the real division will not be broken until an informal vote is taken on next Tuesday.

Fatal Locomotive Explosion.

CHATANOOGA, Tenn., May 30.—The boiler of a locomotive of the Nashville and Chatanooga Railroad exploded in this city at half-past six o'clock Saturday morning on account of over pressure of steam. The fireman, Charles Handeman, was blown a distance of fifty yards and instantly killed. The engineer, who had just stepped behind the tender, escaped injury. A piece of iron, weighing nine pounds, was thrown half a mile and struck J. C. Finch, a car inspector of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, on the shoulder, traversing the entire breadth of the trunk, and causing instant death. Another piece of iron, weighing 200 pounds, passed through two cars loaded with corn and then struck and knocked down the corner of a house.

John Griscom's Fast.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 30, 1881.—John Griscom, of New York, began his forty-five day's fast at noon Saturday. Before that hour, in company with Dr. Tanner, several representative doctors and members of the press, he partook of a hearty meal in the Sherman House. When twelve o'clock arrived he cease d eating, and while the others continued at dinner he explained the nature of the fast he had undertaken, which is to be solely in the interest of science. He will not eat anything and will confine his drinking solely to pure water. Three rooms has been engaged for his use over the entrance to Olympic Theatre. Drs. Harrison, Lyman, Haynes, Danforth, Curtis, Jay, Reading and other well known physicians have arranged to watch and attend the faster.

Ku-Klux in Ohio.

CINCINNATI, May 30.—A special from Richmond, Ind., says:—"A ku-klux gang, supposed to be from Dare county, Ohio, shot down two men in their doorways at night in Dark county, and have given Mr. Timmons, a farmer, residing near Palestine, Preble county, Ohio, notice to leave on penalty of death, after having broken down his doors and destroyed his household goods. They have also served a similiar notice on Mr. Emerick, living near the same place."

The Church and Temperance.

From a paper by Hon. W. E. Dodge, read before the Pan Presbyterian Council in Philadelphia, Wednesday, Sept. 29th, 1880, the following extract is taken: "Having had business interests for many years in the northern part of the State of Pennsylvania, I learned that there had been a great change in one county, which when I first knew it, was noted for its intemperance, and I wrote to Hon. H. W. Williams, one of the District Judges of the State, and long an elder in the Presbyterian church, asking for particulars, and received the following reply: "The county of Potter, to which you refer is in this judicial district. The county town is Coudersport. The history of the traffic in intoxicating drinks during the early history of the county was like that in the counties adjoining, except that drunkenness was if possible, more prevalent. About twenty years ago attention was drawn to the subject, and the people elected Associate Judges pledged to refuse all applications for license. These officers were elected for five years. When that time had elapsed the issue was again made upon the election of Associate Judges, and decided as before by the election of the anti-license ticket. Before this second term expired the county was represented in the legislature by the late Hon. S. Mann, who procured the passage of a law prohibiting the granting of any license within the county, which law is still in force. For twenty years there has not been a licensed hotel or restaurant within the confines of the county. There are enough of both at all suitable places for the accommodation of the public, but in none of them is there a public bar. The sale is conducted therefore at great disadvantage clandestinely, and is very limited in amount.

As to results, I can say that while the country has been steadily growing in population and business, pauperism and crime have steadily decreased. For the past five years the county jail has been fully one half the time without any other inmate than the keeper and his family. Twice within the past ten years, I have, at the regular terms of court, discharged the jury on the second day of the term, without their having been called to consider a single case of any description. The effect of this system is felt in many ways. Taxes are reduced, the business of the criminal courts dismissed, industry and sobriety take the place of idleness and dissipation, and intelligence and morality are advanced. But one effort has been made to repeal the local law, and that failed by reason of the tax-payers of the county. I am glad that you are going to try and stir our church on this subject. Vice of any sort only asks of the churches to be let alone. Grant to it toleration and it will take care of itself. Virtue must be aggressive or nothing. This experience in Potter county might have been that of every county in the State, if the same means had been used."

Now as we, through the above extract, have that which is food for thought and meditation, suppose we here make a little investigation of the election records of "Twenty-six years ago last October, viz: Official Election Returns of Pennsylvania, Tuesday, Oct. 2, 1854.

For Governor, Pollock had		294,008
" Bigler "		167,001
" Abolition "		1,503
	Total,	372,512
Prohibition,
For the law,	158,352
Against "	163,510	321,851
		50,660

Here we have 50,660 less votes in the State on prohibition than for Governor, and the majority against prohibition in the State was 5,168.

Now let us look at the vote for Centre county.

Pollock had		2,774 votes
Bigler "		2,112 "
		4,887 Total
Prohibition
For the law,	2,538
Against "	1,871	4,309
Maj. for the law, 567		578

We have 578 votes less in Centre county for prohibition than for the State ticket, with a majority for the law of 567 votes.

Now let us look at the vote of Union township, Unionville was not a borough at that time.

Pollock had		110 votes
Bigler "		45 "
		155 Total
Prohibition,
For the law,	137
Against "	18	155

So you will see old Union had no hand in the non-voting fraternity, and only 18 votes against the law out of 155 cast. And here I have a question to ask for information: What class of citizens does the 50,660 non-voters of the State belong to? We may rest assured that all interested either directly or indirectly in the liquor business voted against the law, and now I will let the matter rest for awhile, awaiting an answer before making further comments.

Respectfully Yours,
THOS. J. TAYLOR,
State Central Committee.

Memorial Day at Pleasant Gap.

The observance of Memorial Day at Pleasant Gap was characterized by more spirit and enthusiasm than has centered into the exercises for many years back. A correspondent writes:

"The decoration ceremonies at Pleasant Gap excelled those of any previous year, in point of numbers in attendance and in the interest taken by those present. Ten o'clock was the hour appointed for the exercises to begin, but long before that time a large crowd of people, estimated at from three to four hundred, had assembled. The procession was formed by Chief Marshal John R. Tate, and, headed by the Pleasant Gap band, marched to the cemetery at the Methodist church. After the rendition of a few appropriate selections by the band, prayer was offered by Rev. Warner.

The special decoration services were then read by comrades selected by committees, after which Clement Dale, Esq., of Bellefonte, was introduced and delivered the oration. Mr. Dale's address was an able effort, bristled with patriotic sentiment, and was delivered with pleasing effect. At its conclusion all the soldiers' graves in the cemetery were decorated, after which the procession reformed and marched to the Lutheran cemetery, where the ceremonies of the day were concluded by decorating the graves of soldiers there buried. Rev. Warner made a few remarks of an interesting and appropriate nature, closing with the benediction. The choir, specially organized for the occasion, sang the memorial ode and other appropriate selections.

The people of our community deserve great credit for the interest and enthusiasm manifested on this occasion, and a pleasing thought for reflection is that this interest is increasing every year.

State College.

It would be difficult, perhaps to find a more delightful spot in the county than the grounds of the State College at present. The campus, refreshed by the recent rains, and closely mown, has no superior perhaps among the colleges of the State. The trees, although still young, many of them, are remarkably bright and flourishing. The wheat field, which lies on one side of the grounds, besides constituting a rich border for the campus, is noteworthy as the finest crop in this section.

The building is being repaired, and the effect on the outside is very pleasing.

The base ball club is in trim for work, and it is rumored that it would like to match itself once more against its time-honored opponent, the Bellefonte club.

Prof. Harrison, the eminent elocutionist, has been spending several weeks at the college giving lessons in his art to a large class, and if universal testimony may be trusted, he is sustaining his enviable reputation. It is a matter of regret that he will leave in a few days.

Traveling agents are said to be passing constantly through the place, but manum de tabulum, enough has been said. If you are tired of looking at rows of houses and hearing the hum of business, take a drive and visit the old State College.

HARRY SCRATCH.

—Information is said to have been received in London from a trustworthy private source in Rome of the discovery of a plot in the latter city to assassinate the King of Italy. The suspected person is an Italian who arrived in Rome with a fellow-countryman several weeks ago. Both of the men were recognized by the police as members of the International, and from the moment of their appearance in the city their footsteps have been dogged. Simultaneously with their arrival a number of boxes containing explosive materials for use in the St. Gothard tunnel were stolen from the Italo-Swiss Society. Models of these boxes were at once sent to all the police stations in the Kingdom.

The King of Italy had better pull up stakes and come over and dwell in Bellefonte, where he will not be in constant danger of losing his life. Then, too, he will have the opportunity of buying his groceries of Sechler & Co., which, owing to their purity and freshness, will have a tendency to make him forget his enemies and enjoy life.

From the Hub.

There is perhaps no tonic offered to the people that possesses as much real intrinsic value as the Hop Bitters. Just at this season of the year, when the stomach needs an appetizer, or the blood needs purifying, the cheapest and best remedy is Hop Bitters. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Don't wait until you are prostrated by a disease that may take months for you to recover in.—Boston Globe.

—Decoration Day is over; now fill up the bags, boxes and barrels with pure, fresh family groceries from Sechler & Co.'s model store, and you will prosper and enjoy good health till Memorial Day comes round again. A supply of groceries from this establishment will keep you in a good physical condition so long as they last.

Increasing His Sales.

Some of the Galveston peanut roasters have acquired the pernicious habit of offering for sale packages, which, after purchase, are found to be only half full of the healthful berries. Yesterday Gilhooly strolled up to one of these deceptive characters and asked him:

"How many peanuts do you sell in a day?"

"Some days I sell two or three bushels."

"I'll tell you how you can sell twice that quantity."

"How can I do it?" asked the goober man eagerly.

"Simply by putting twice as many in a package."

The expression which came over the man's face was like that which is observed on the face of an ambitious editor when he looks through an exchange for a puff and finds it not.—Galveston News.

Woman's Wisdom.

"She insists that it is more important that her family should be kept in full health, than that she should have all the fashionable dresses and styles of the times. She therefore sees to it, that each member of her family is supplied with enough Hop Bitters, at the first appearance of any symptoms of ill health, to prevent a fit of sickness, with its attendant expense, care and anxiety. All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."—New Haven Palladium.

Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, indigestion, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night, after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, External and Itching Piles yield at once on the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain upon the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him, we will send it, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by F. Potts Green. 21-17t

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Boiler Explosion.

YOUNGSTOWN, May 23.—A few minutes before 7 o'clock this morning the upright boiler of furnace No. 3, in Brown, Bonnell & Co.'s old mill, situated next to the one which exploded a month or so ago, collapsed. Fortunately but four workmen were in the place at the time, and only three men—David Jenkins. Thomas Thomas and David Kinney were injured. Jenkins was badly burned about the legs and arms, and also received severe bruises. The opinion is that he cannot recover. Kinney, a puddler, and Thomas his helper, were working at furnace directly in the rear of the boiler. The force of the explosion blew the flame out of the furnace, and in this manner Kinney was terribly burned on the legs, back, arms, and one side of the face. His injuries are pronounced serious. Thomas was the most fortunate of the unfortunate trio, and was but slightly scalded by the escaping steam. Bricks and heavy pieces of iron were hurled about promiscuously by the explosion, but fell out of range of the workmen. The excitement at the time was intense, as the recent disaster in the same mill is still fresh in the minds of the employes and citizens. All that medical aid can do to alleviate the sufferings of the injured is being done.

Exciting Episode.

READING, Pa May 23.—A very strong temperance crusade under leadership of W. M. Wannamaker is in progress here. Last evening the stage of the Young Men's Christian Association hall was crowded with ministers and the hall was packed. Violent speeches were made by the various ministers against F. Lauer, the brewer, at the conclusion of which Rev. J. M. Spear, who was on the stage, rose and forcibly defended Lauer. The person in charge of the meeting excitedly arose, seized Rev. Mr. Spear by the collar and ordered him to leave the stage. Great excitement prevailed, and Rev. Mr. Spear hastily departed. He writes a bitter letter to the press to-day and promises to organize a new movement.

Fatal Explosion.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 25.—An explosion of fifteen barrels of Danforth's fluid, stored in a cellar on Edmond Street, this city, occurred at 9 o'clock last evening. The floor over the cellar was occupied as a saloon and billiard room by colored men, a number of whom were in at the time and all of whom lost their lives. The number cannot be ascertained, but is variously estimated at from fifteen to forty-five. Five bodies have been recovered up to this time, all burned beyond recognition. The building was totally destroyed. The inmates were buried in the debris, which was completely enveloped by the hot flames of the burning fluid. Water was freely used by the fire department, but was of no avail. The concussion shook the buildings for several blocks distant.

Several thousand excited people are now surrounding the scene of the disaster and many women and children are screaming and bewailing the loss of their husbands and fathers and friends.

Outlook at Albany.

ALBANY, May 26.—From appearances here no one would think there was such an important question pending as the one before the Legislature. The members were in their seats in both houses attending even more closely than usual to business and when spoken to regarding the Senatorial issue answered promptly and decisively either for or against Conkling as the case may be. At the Delavan House Conkling and his associates held levees, entertaining mostly, however, persons who are not members of the Legislature.

RUMORED COMPROMISE.

All sorts of reports have been in circulation, some evidently set afloat as feelers, and others entire fiction. Among those given this afternoon was one that the friends of Conkling say if he is returned to the Senate he will abstain from attacking the administration, and further that if it is demanded in the interest of harmony Platt will withdraw as a candidate and the administration may name a Senator to take his place. It was also reported that President Garfield has approved of such arrangement, and urges his friends to accept his proposition. The proposition, however, it was added, was received with not a little distrust, and had no effect upon those who are determined not to go into a caucus. If accepted, they say, the election of their man in place of Platt must be consummated before they will cast a vote for Conkling. This report was industriously put forward, but a little investigation set it at rest. The administration men said if President Garfield has urged anything of the kind his friends would be the first to be notified of his wishes in the matter and they have not been so notified.

A Dead Lock Inevitable.

NEW YORK, May 26.—A special from Albany to the Brooklyn Eagle says: The anti-Conkling-ites are not only holding the men they had but are gaining. A dead lock is inevitable and the fight will be carried into the campaign of next fall. Vice President Arthur said to-day that the administration contingency would give them some trouble, but in the end it would be beaten. Yet if you can get one to talk to you frankly, you will find them acknowledge that there will be no election at this time and that the whole affair must go to the people.

Boiler Explosion.

CINCINNATI, May 25.—The Oakland steam saw-mill, four miles west of Oakland, was blown to atoms by the explosion of the steam boiler. Marshall Butler, the fireman, was blown a distance of 600 or 700 feet and was instantly killed. William Browning was caught under falling timber and seriously injured. Eight or ten other persons were slightly injured.

Conkling's Opponents.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—A private despatch has just been received here stating that forty-four signatures have been obtained among the Republican members of the New York Legislature to the new iron clad pledge, binding them to vote against any candidates for the United States Senate who are unfriendly to the Administration.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Ontario Horror.

LONDON, Ont., May 26.—The work of securing the dead from under the wreck of the Victoria is still actively going on. One hundred and fifty bodies have been recovered, and most of them brought to the city. All the undertakers' shops are besieged and coffins going out by the score. The crowds at the river bank and steamer landing has not diminished. Among the identified are two daughters of James Barnes. The list of identified is still incomplete. A large number of bodies remain on the grounds at the Sulpher Springs baths awaiting claimants.

When the water was let off, by the removal of the plash-boards, search was continued for those under the lower deck, and twenty two more bodies were brought to the surface, making about 200 in all recovered. It is not known how many more, if any, are lost.

The City Council met to-day and passed resolutions of condolence. A settled gloom reigns over the city.

A PASSENGER'S STATEMENT.

R. O. Montgomery, leather merchant, of Toronto, was on board, but escaped and succeeded in saving many others. He states that on the passage up the Captain went among the passengers urging them to keep on the other side. To one boy he said, "For God's sake keep on the other side; if you don't you'll have to swim for it." A little later on he saw the water pass in over the deck and the boiler go by the board, when the crash immediately took place.

Almost all business is at a standstill, and crowds line the streets discussing the sad calamity. The burial of the victims is at this hour, 2:30 P. M., proceeding. Flags are at half-mast and bells tolling.

A Nihilist Sensation.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Evening Telegram prints the following sensational story under date of Paris yesterday: On the strength of a letter from St. Petersburg yesterday morning the Intransigeant announces that "at 7 o'clock on the morning of the 16th inst., just four days after the birth of her child, Hessy Halfman, whom everybody supposed to be alive and awaiting the pleasure of Alexander, was hanged in prison. It is said she had been tortured daily in the most fiendish manner to wring confessions from her. Night after night she was awakened and warned her hour was near. For several days in succession she was literally strung up and cut down just in time to prevent expiring. On the morning of the 16th the hanging process is said to have lasted a little too long, and when Hessey was cut down it was discovered she was strangled to death."

The same paper adds that "the indignation and excitement in St. Petersburg are intense. The troops have been forbidden to leave their barracks on any pretense, and a revolutionary movement seems to be anticipated."

Nihilists to the Czar.

LONDON, May 24.—The Russian revolutionists have answered the Czar's manifesto by a second utterance, dwelling on the wretchedness of the peasants, the deportations to Siberia, the gagging of free speech and public journals, and declaring that false counsellors are in possession of the Czar's ear. The document concludes as follows: "Let Your Majesty assemble your people around you and listen to their wishes in an unprejudiced spirit, and then neither Your Majesty nor the State will have any reason to apprehend further catastrophe."

Baron Gunzberg, a prominent banker, heading a deputation of influential Jews, will have an audience of the Czar at Gatchina to-day.

A telegram from Odessa of Saturday states that the disturbances continue there. Forty-five restaurants have been plundered and wrecked. The troops are bivouacked in the streets.

Nihilist Bomb Factory.

PARIS, May 26.—The peculiarly dismal Parisian suburb known as Montrogue was yesterday thrown into a state of unwonted and most violent excitement by the report that a Nihilist manufactory of explosive bombs had been discovered in that quarter. The existence of the manufactory has been for some time known to the police, and a minute inquiry had been secretly instituted. Yesterday the tenants of the suspected house, which is situated in Rue des Artistes, were surprised by a sudden eruption of a strong body of police. Three men supposed to be Nihilists, Ivanhoff, Flovomitz and another, were found in one of the rooms surrounded by bottles containing liquid believed to be nitro glycerine. They were captured and taken off to the depot before they had time to attempt resistance. A number of compromising papers are said to have been seized on the premises. Among them were several letters from Hessy Helfman. It is evident from a St. Petersburg letter to the Gambetist organ, Nationale, that the L'Jnite Hessy's death was lately current and believed in the Russian capital.

Death of the Governor of Presidency of Madras.

LONDON, May 25.—A despatch from Madras to the Daily Chronicle announces that Right Hon. Wm. Patrick Adams, Governor of the Presidency of Madras, died at half-past eleven o'clock this morning. His age was 58. The Indian Government has given a reward of $60,000 each to General Roberts and Lieutenant General Stewart for their Afghan campaign.

President Garfield and Secretaries Blaine, Windom and Kirkwood have accepted the invitation to participate in the Decoration Day ceremonies at Gettysburg. Gov. Hoyt and both Houses of the State Legislature will also attend. Hon. Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan, will deliver the oration.

A Colored Beau Brummel.

There was a ball the other night that was attended by the elite of the colored aristocracy of Galveston. Jim Webster, who has very light complexion, and rather proud of it, was there. He invited one of the colored ladies, who is blacker than the ace of spades, to dance, but she put on immense airs because he didn't wear gloves, fearing he might soil her dress with his hands.

"Look heah, Sukey," said Jim, "ef yer didn't wash yerself fore you comed here I don't want to swing corners wid you nohow. I don't want to hab ter use a scrubbing brush on my hans ebery time I slings one ob dese black heifers around."

The Realistic in Dress Trimming.

Mrs. Million—"I am not at all satisfied with the dress I wore last night. The palm leaves were too heavy and the camillias faded before the first dance. As for that lattice-work covered with jasmine you fixed up for me on my skirt, why, it was coming undone the whole evening." Madame Bellerobes—"Very sorry, madam, but you said you liked flowers better than fruit. It is the first complaint I have had, and I garden, as you know, some of the best blood in town. You will remember that I gave you refusal of the dress worn by Mrs Billionaire which made such a sensation." Mrs. Million—"The grape drapery, with its vegetable marrows and parsnips, was certainly pleasing. By the way, the sudden introduction of the artichokes in the tunic was ineffective." Madam Bellerobes—"Madam is right. I frankly admit that the cucumber required toning down. We ought to have scattered a pint of peas over the gauze, and emphasized the buckles with kidney potatoes. Madame is pleased with the dress she is going to wear to-night? It cost me several hours of the most anxious thought. I believe—fondly believe—the patch of mushrooms worn on the left arm will be thought a masterpiece. As for the vegetables, you may rely upon them. They came fresh this morning from market." Mrs. Million—"It might be worse. The bouquets of carrots and Brussele sprouts are certainly sweet."

The New Style of Reportipg.

Not long since the will of a male person, who was so unfortunate as to die from delirium tremens, with fatal results to himself, was contested in the Galveston Probate Court by the surviving heirs. It was alleged that the deceased was not in the habit of drinking non-intoxicating stimulants except alcoholic beverages and hence was not in a fit condition to manufacture wills, so interested parties had to help him to make his will to the detriment of his neglected heirs, who kicked. An Italian witness, by the name of Murphy, was put on the stand to prove that the deceased was not in his right mind.

"Was the deceased in his right mind at the time of his death?" asked the lawyer.

"Do you mane before or afther his death?"

"Before, of course."

"I'll tell ye what I think. When he drew his last breath he didn't know what he was about."

"What caused you to entertain that view of the case?"

"Because his last breath was the only thing that smelt of whiskey that he didn't draw wid a corkscrew."—Galveston News.

Woes of the Period.

The new house has draughts. The wood-work needs painting; one of the gas fixtures is broken; the last people left things in a frightful condition; one window pane is out in the principal bed-room, and the glass in the door is cracked. Not a key to any of the rooms. There are undoubted signs of cockroaches in the vicinity of the washtubs, and a horrid suspicion haunts the female branch of the household that a rat has been heard to gnaw. There was no water last night and the pipes are certainly not right. Mr. Smith should certainly paper that hall bed-room and the dining-room is simply dismal. If he doesn't put things right we shan't stay, not a day. Had we known that the back door would n't lock, and that those horrid people across the way could see into our windows, we should never have taken the house, never.

P. S.—Just the faintest suspicion of sewer gas, and one chimney smokes.

Matrimonial Experience.

Two Connecticut brides, both of them still in their teens came down on the cars to New York and took advantage of their occupation of the seat to exchange confidences. "Mary," said one, "how do you like married life?" "So far as I've gone," answered her companion, quite enthusiastically, "I think it scumptious. How do you feel about it, Annie?" Anna rolled her eyes like a school-girl with a mouth full of caramels, and clasping her hands on Mary's knees, exclaimed: "You won't think me foolish if I tell you? Well, then, if I had known what fun it was I would have got married long ago."—Washington Republican.

Chained by His Collar Bone.

A Buddhist priest was recently seen in Hangchow asking for alms in the public streets. He bore round his neck a heavy iron chain, which on close inspection could be seen to be attached to his body by a small silver chain passing around his collar bone, through the flesh. Numerous placards posted in the streets announced that the alms solicited by the priest were for the sake of rebuilding a stone bridge in the neighborhood of Shaoshing. He hoped, of course, that the sight of the pain inflicted on himself would soften the hearts and loosen the purse-strings of the passers by.—Japan Gazette.

A Watch Dog's Mistake.

There is an old and ugly dog owned by a merchant in this city that isn't exactly clear as to which is his master's and which his neighbor's office, and this failing of the dog was the cause of the next door neighbor's grief one evening recently. The neighbor in question entered the office after dark, and the intelligent animal followed him in and ensconced himself behind the stove. This was very well, but when the gas was lighted the dog, seeing that the man was a stranger, "went" for him in Bunker Hill style; and that book-keeper suddenly had business on the street.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

On the night of the Fourth of July there will be an exhibition of fireworks at Manhattan Beach at a cost of $5,000.

A Depot Scene.

Eternal warfare seems to rage between the country negro and the town darkey. This was illustrated at the passenger depot yesterday A colored youth from Pike county approached a town negro, and the following conversation ensued:

'Whar bouts is de ticket offis?'

'Right dar 'fo yo' eyes.'

'Fo' whose eyes?'

'Yone.'

'Is you de ticket offis?,

'Look yer, nigger, don't you give me none yo' slack.'

'I'm a mighty slack man, ole man when I git stirred up.'

'An you'll git stirred up ef you stand roun' yer foolin' longer me.'

'Dat's de kinder exorcise w'at I'm a pinin' fer.'

And with that they clinched and had a lively tussle. They were separated, however, before a policeman came along, and the Pike county darkey found the ticket office. The town negro, it may be well to mention, was badly used up.—Atlanta Constitution.

Narragansett, though inferior in size and appointments to its affluent neighbor, catches the surplus of the great influx to Newport.

—EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES.—The Queen City Suspender Company, of Cincinnati, are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and Children, and their unequaled Skirt Suspenders for Ladies. None should be without them; our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praise. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some reliable and energetic lady to introduce them in this county, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary and have the exclusive agency for this county. We advise some lady who is in need of employment to send to the Company her name and address, and mention this paper. Address Queen City Suspender Company, Nos. 147 & 149 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. 21-7t

—It is well known to the world that the United States is more liberal to its soldiers than any other country on the face of the globe. Every soldier who served ninety days or more in the Union Army during the Rebellion, and who has an honorable discharge, is entitled to one hundred and sixty acres of land, under the homestead laws. For particulars address Gilmore & Co., Washington, D. C. 20-3t

Brigham Young's Grave.

An ill-looking stone wall, about six feet high, incloses an area of nearly an acre. A carriage gate constructed of rough, unpainted boards stood ajar, and I entered. Fully one quarter of the inclosure is rented off by a second stone wall on one side, and in the southeast corner of the sub-inclosure Brigham Young rests in final repose A huge slab of granite lying flat on his grave and a high railing of iron are all that meet the eye, save the walks and sward of the little cemetery. There is no inscription of any kind—not even his name. Outside of Brigham's personal graveyard the grounds are so shabby that they might be taken for a dumping place for garbage. In one corner of this outer cemetery are four or five neglected graves, possibly those of his departed wives. Still another grave at that quarter is marked. At its head is an unpainted pine board, on which appears the name of "E. I. Young." Underneath the name some wag has plainly written with a pencil. "We are laboring for the kingdom of God, gentlemen." The Mormons pay little respect to the resting places of their dead.

—Gilmore & Co., 629 F Street, Washington, D. C., request every Soldier or Sailor who served in the Union Army during the late war, to send his name and post office address on a postal card. Write plainly name, post office, county and State. In return you will receive a copy of a new paper, America, containing valuable information. 20-3t

—Have you seen the new style Wooden Curb for Chain Pumps? and by the way are you aware that the chain pumps are being daily substituted for the other pumps in use. Wilson, McFarlane & Co. are making a specialty of these pumps. If you want pure, cold water don't fail to get a Chain Pump.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms of moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected; if allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "Dr Swayne's All-Healing Ointment" is a pleasant sure cure. Also the Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all Scaly, Crusty, Cutaneous Eruptions. Price 50 cents. 3 boxes for $1.25. Sent by mail to any address on receipt of price in currency, or three cent postage stamp. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., to whom letters should be addressed. Sold by all prominent druggists. 12-7-1y

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Good Company—Double Number.

Good Company ($3.00 a year; Springfield, Mass.) issues Nos. 19 and 20 together, making a double number. Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, the commander of the Franklin Search Expedition which returned last autumn, has two of his series of articles on experiences and adventures in the Arctic world, under the title, "In the Land of the Midnight Sun." The first tells of previous Franklin expeditions, and the second begins the narrative of his own. In future articles he will continue the story. S. J. Douglass has a paper on the Eskimo race.

A long installment, about thirty pages, of a new serial story is given. It is printed anonymously under the title of "Mildred's Caprice. There are also three complete stories.

As befits the season there are numerous articles about travel and adventure in a wide variety of localities. Perhaps the most important of these is a pen-picture from Spain entitled "The Caliphate of Cordova." It is enough to say that it is in the best style of Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney, who made a trip through that country last season. Relating to places nearer home are An Ascent of Long's Peak by Mr. Sylvester C. Dunham, and Personal Recollections of the Utes by Mr. Ernest Ingersoll. Others are Guayaquil; Western Pastoral Life by Alfred T. Bacon; A Fortnight in the Palace of Reeds, by Maurice Thompson; Paris Street Cries, by Jno. Joline Ross; An Old Maid's Dissipations Abroad, by Rachel Carew; Antoine of Bagdad.

Mr. George M. Towle summarizes the life of Carlyle. Articles on miscellaneous topics are Economy in Charity, by Mr. D. Otis Kellogg; The Decadence of American Shipping, by Alexander McLean; Modern Whist, by Charles F. Johnson, Jr.; and among the poems are included one to the Poet Whittier by Marian Douglas, and a verse on May Day by Miss Dora Read Goodale.

The opening of the new serial, and the papers on Arctic experiences by Lieutenant Schwatka, offer special attractions to NEW SUBSCRIBERS, who if they like to read of novel scenes in strange lands will find this number additionally attractive because of its articles of this kind.

Farm Notes.

Water wheels yield from 50 to 91 per cent. of the power of water.

All the flocks of Merino Sheep in Addison county, Vt., are assessed at $15 per head.

It is estimated that the acreage in winter wheat is four per cent greater than last year.

The paracite known as the Northerus, destroys millions of the eggs of the canker worm.

Breeding from immature animals is a great mistake. It is the foundation of degeneracy.

A farmer should so arrange his kitchen garden that he can use both plow and cultivator in its management.

A Merino ram crossed on a flock of common sheep, will double the yield of wool through the first cross alone, thus paying for the ram the first season.

An intelligent farmer says that the leaves and stalks from an acre of corn are worth as much to feed the stock as the hay which could be raised on the same amount of land.

The two implements which do the most towards liberating the fertilizing minerals from the soil are the harrow and cultivator. The more these are used the less weeds we shall have, and the more fertile will be the land.

The following is recommended as a cure for garget cows: Eight drops of tincture of aconite dropped on a piece of bread and mixed with the food at night. Next morning four drops more given in the same manner will generally complete the cure.

In propagating honeysuckles cuttings of wood when nearly ripe will strike if inserted in a shady border in the autumn and duly watered. Perhaps the most successful mode of propagating is by layers pegged in moist soil in the autumn, when the leaves commence falling.

Facts for the Curious.

Although the Chinese had gunpowder many centuries before it was known in Europe, they did not employ it in war but used it only in fireworks.

The leaning tower of Pisa was built in the twelfth century. It is 190 feet high and leans fifteen feet from the perpendicular. The inclination was caused by the settling of one side of the foundation.

The thread for the glass cloth, now made at Pittsburg, is drawn out of a molten bar by means of rapidly revolving wheels at the rate of 2,000 yards a minute. The weaving is done on looms, about the same as with silk. The coloring in done with minerals when the glass is originally melted.

It is the opinion of Rev. J. G. Wood, a popular English writer on natural history, that the cockroach and red ant, which abound in England as in this country, are not indigenous there, but were imported in merchandise from America. The numbers of ants are so great in some houses as to render the buildings uninhabitable. The houses have had the floors relaid, cement and porcelain tiles used wherever possible, but the house ants have retained possession of the premises. The passages to their nests are so small that boiling water loses its heat long before the few drops which can trickle through them can touch the nest. Insect powders are equally useless, and sulphur and smoke has no terror for these insects.

Fashionable Fancies.

Very fine silk gauze gloves, as soft and almost as thin as a spider's web, with buttons for fastenings, are the fashionable thing for this summer.

For evening wear skirts are rather short in front to show the shoe, which is of the material of the dress, and the black or white lace stocking.

Stripes have not superseded brocades bouquets, but they are newer, especially the somber or shaded stripes, and the Algerienne many-colored stripes.

Foulards will be a great feature in every variety of toilet, and with a satin face, and printed in some of the new and exquisite designs they are indeed quite works of art.

English tailor-made jackets fit the figure closely, and have triple collars; tweed in dark brown shades is the favorite material. Occasionally bows of Bayadere silk are added.

The bals blancs in Paris for young ladies recommenced directly after Easter. At the one of the Duchesse de Mailee, Rue de Lille, all the girls adopted short costumes, either white or pink, clouded with heavy flounces.

Silk dresses in dark and medium shades are trimmed with revers and broad ends of fine white guipure lace. These toilets appear very simple, and are for this reason, very elegant; the lace, however, makes them quite costly.

Important Circular.

The following circular, of great interest to the large number of widows, orphans and disabled soldiers whose claims are involved, has been issued from the War Department at Washington, with the request that newspapers give it circulation:

"There being now pending in this department great numbers of volunteer pension claims which cannot be satisfactorily verified for want of information which missing records of discontinued volunteer commands would afford, and it having transpired in many instances that officers of the late volunteer forces have still in their possession or under their control books and other records pertaining to their corps, divisions, brigades, regiments and companies, their attention is called to the fact that all such books and records should be deposited with this office, and they are earnestly requested to cause the same to be forwarded without delay to the Adjutant General of the Army, at Washington, District of Columbia.

"No expense, other than postage and proper express charges (when packages exceed four pounds, the limit for mail parcels), can be paid by the Government."

Romantic, Very.

"There is so much marrying and giving in marriage going on in New York now, says the World, "that any tale which blooms with orange blossoms will easily find credence and attract listeners." The latest of the wedding stories is that a couple of lovers recently were married by cable. It appears that the heroine is a tradesman's daughter.

"In tying her bonnet under the chin,
She tied a young man's heart within."

The young man belonged to an aristocratic family. When his parents learned of the love-making last month they sent the culprit on a European tour. Arrived in London, the young man drew upon his father for several thousand, and summoning his sweetheart to the other end of the line, married her by cable.

Summer residents at Spring Lake and Sea Girt, the twin resorts, change from one place to the other to relieve the monotony.

Van Dyke's SULPHUR SOAP

Is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which enters the pores of the skin, being absorbed into the blood through the minute capillaries, and thus acts upon the skin, whether it is healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurities from the blood, and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity, and freshness of the complexion which is unequalled, and can be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bath room is complete without it. It makes the skin pure, clear, white and healthy; is cleansing, deodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, ulcers, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of biting and stinging insects; will relieve itching piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, proprietors, 301 Callowhill street, Philadelphia. 12-20-1y

—Philipsburg enjoyed a visit from Francis Murphy last week.

—The day we decorate is past—the day we celebrate comes next.

—A good deal of drunkenness was noticeable on the streets on Saturday.

—The days now contain a little over fourteen hours of sunlight—that is, when it don't rain.

—You can catch bass to-day—provided you can find them and are skillful with the line.

—A birthday party was given by Miss Bella Rankin Monday night, and it was an enjoyable affair.

—There is only one class of people in town more numerous than Democratic candidates—drummers.

—Reports from the rural districts concerning the hay crops are cheering. The crop promises to be large.

—McCoy & Linn are filling a large order for iron to be used in the manufacture of threshing machine teeth.

—A collision of farm wagons occurred on Allegheny street, Saturday, resulting in but little damage, however.

—By a change of schedule the Snow Shoe freight now reaches here at 6:30 instead of 9:30 p. m., as heretofore.

—Mr. Hiram Hoffer, of Philipsburg, has been spending a few days in town circulating among his numerous friends.

—Good market on Saturday. A large number of teams were in, and the display of produce was quite extensive.

—The Clinton Democrat appeared last week in a new outfit of handsome type, which wonderfully improves its appearance.

—The town contained a large number of strangers on Saturday from the surrounding cities, hamlets and farming sections.

—The residence of Mr. Edward Tyson was the scene of a very merry gathering of both old and young last Friday night.

—James Blair, of Philipsburg, a deaf mute, was married one day last week to a young lady of Altoona. Curtain lectures will have no terrors for him.

—Peaches, it is said, will command high prices this season, in consequence of the injury done the crop by the frosts. This intelligence strikes us in a particularly weak spot.

—The banks were closed Monday, and but one session held at the public schools. A few of the more patriotically inclined storekeepers closed their places of business during the afternoon ceremonies, but a larger number did not close.

—What public-spirited citizen desires to hand his name down to posterity by donating a public drinking fountain for the Diamond? There are those in our midst who are abundantly able to make such a contribution.

—We have been informed that several fields of corn in this vicinity have failed to come up, which is attributed to the fact that the land was cold and damp when seeded. The fields will be replanted with oats.

—Ardell's up-river drive reached this place last Friday, and hung up in Shaw's dam, below town, until a flood comes. This is the rear drive, and clears everything up from Cherrytree down.—Clearfield Republican.

—Dr. E. W. Hale is making some much-needed improvements on his property on Allegheny street, which has been vacant several months. A new roof has been put on, and carpenters are now engaged in tearing out and rebuilding the partitions.

—Mr. Elijah Kinley, who met with a serious accident at McCoy & Linn's a short time since—a red-hot wire passing through his leg at the knee—is improving rapidly, and it is thought that the usefulness of the limb will not be impaired.

—The Greensburg Tribune says that while a couple of boys were playing in the attic of an old foundry in Clarion, Indiana county, a few days since, they found a fruit can in which was stuffed the dead body of a child. Either that child was of very tender years or they make mighty big fruit cans up in that section.

—Why condemn boys for smoking while ninety-nine out of every hundred men practice the same habit?—[Tyrone Herald. Because in early years the habit is acquired, and can be more easily broken. A man who has been a user of the weed for a long period of years finds it hard work to give it up. It strikes us that the Herald's view of the matter is senseless.

DECORATING THE SOLDIERS' GRAVES.

Bellefonte's Observance of Memorial Day—Appropriate Services Successfully Carried Out.

The beautiful and time-honored custom of strewing the graves of departed soldier-heroes with flowers and evergreens, accompanying the exercises with an oration and other appropriate ceremonies was observed Monday throughout the country, and at no place with a more successful ending than in Bellefonte, although we think the proceedings were somewhat lacking in spirit as compared with other years. Under the auspices of Gregg Post, G. A. R., assisted by our citizens in general, the matter was early taken hold of and carried forward in a systematical manner, and as a consequence Monday morning found the arrangements, even to detail, all completed for a proper observance of the day, and such it was.

In order to escape the oppressive heat of the early afternoon, the exercises were not held until four o'clock. To many the interesting feature on Decoration Day is the street parade, and long before the hour of marching had arrived large numbers of spectators had collected on the streets through which the procession was to pass.

At 4 o'clock the organizations intending to participate in the parade began to assemble in the Court House square, and were assigned their proper positions by Post Commander Geo. F. Harris, chief marshal, aided by Adjutant H. H. Benner. At twenty minutes past four, the line having been formed, the word of command was given and the column moved in the following order:

Chief Marshal and Assistant.
Mountain City Band.
Co. B, 5th Reg't N. G. Pa.
Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R.
Logan Hose Co., No. 1.
Undine Hose Co., No. 2.
Carriage containing Orator of Day and others.

The route of parade was down Allegheny street to Howard, out Howard to Spring, through Spring to Bishop, out Bishop to Allegheny, out Allegheny to Howard and up Howard to Union Cemetery. The procession was, without a doubt, the finest that has occurred in Bellefonte, on a similar occasion, for several years. All the organizations in line were uniformed, looked neat as a pin and made a good appearance generally. Gregg Post turned out in strong numbers, as it always does when any kind of a demonstration of a patriotic nature is going on; Co. B sustained its reputation for good marching, but the ranks were not as full as they should have been. However, this could not very well be helped as many of the members of the company belong to one or the other of the fire companies. The Logan Hose Co. turned out between thirty-five and forty men and of course made a very creditable appearance—they never appear otherwise. The Undine had about the same number of men in line, if anything a few less. What made them a special object of interest was the fact that they were, for the first time, their new uniforms, purchased but a few days since. The new shirts are similar to the old ones, being constructed of blue material with white trimmings, and make a very neat and tasty display.

AT THE CEMETERY.

As the head of the procession entered the cemetery the band began the execution of the dead march, and the military reversed arms. Near the centre of the enclosure a beautiful cross of flowers had been erected during the day by some of our patriotic ladies, near where some special decorations were to be made, and around this the procession drew up and halted. After prayer by Rev. DeLong the work of decorating the graves was proceeded with, at the conclusion of which the procession moved back a few yards to the platform, where the usual oration was delivered.

The speaker on this occasion was Hon. J. Merrill Linn, of Lewisburg, brother of our fellow-citizen, Hon. John B. Linn. The gentleman delivered his oration from notes, occupying about forty minutes. The address was a scholarly production, carefully prepared, and abounded in patriotic sentiment and beautiful expressions. The ceremonies ended with the oration, and at its conclusion the organizations reformed and marched back to town, where the parade was disbanded. The weather during the afternoon was decidedly threatening, and at intervals the raindrops came pattering down, but not in sufficient quantity to disturb the proceedings.

AT THE COURT HOUSE.

The ceremonies at the Court House in the evening were a fitting ending of the afternoon's proceedings. Four soldiers have died during the last year, namely, Henry Eckenrote, Henry Brooks, Thomas Wilson, and James Sheridan, and a special memorial service of the G. A. R. was observed by Gregg Post of this place. At half-past seven the Post assembled at the headquarters, and headed by Mountain City Band, marched to the Court House in a body. They formed a circle within the bar, inside of which a beautiful stand of flowers was erected. After singing an appropriate piece of music by the choir, provided for the occasion, Commander Harris arose and called upon the Adjutant of the Post to read the records of the deceased soldiers, which was done. Appropriate passages of Scripture were repeated by members of the Post, interspersed with choice selections of music. The Lord's prayer (old version) having been repeated in unison, John G. Love, Esq., arose and delivered an excellent and stirring address. Mr. Love is a gifted speaker, and his glowing tribute to his deceased comrades will be appreciated by all the friends of Union soldiers. The whole was pleasing and entertaining. The Misses Lyons and Messrs. Blanchard and Bradley provided music for the occasion, and deserve great praise for the manner in which it was rendered. The audience was dismissed by Rev. Laurie pronouncing the benediction.

A Visit to the Senacas.

Rev. R. Crittenden has just returned from another trip through the northwestern part of the State, engaged in mission work. While in that section he conducted several meetings among the Senaca Indians, in the Cornplanter Reservation, on the Allegheny river. From a personal interview we learn that these Senacas are the last remnant of that once powerful tribe. They are now diminishing, from year to year, and their total obliteration is only a question of time. In one family visited, that consisted of twelve members, five have died within the last twelvemonth. Previous to his visit Mr. Crittenden had written requesting the younger Indians to learn certain Scripture lessons for recitation when he should visit them. Three of these, including the 23d Psalm, they recited in concert without a mistake. Mr. C. thinks that the best way to settle the Indian question is to give them the Gospel and prepare them for the life beyond.

Keep an Eye Out for Tramps.

It is thought by some that the robberies committed in this section recently, and in other parts of the valley between Lock Haven and Tyrone, is the work of tramps, and the robbing of a dwelling house in the latter place on Tuesday night of $70 in money and clothing, in which tramps are known to have figured, adds weight to the opinion. Farmers and others state that at no time in the past four years have such numbers of tramps visited this section as at the present season. They refuse to work when an opportunity is offered, and as they are without the means of sustaining themselves, it naturally follows that they should resort to plundering. "The woods is full of 'em," and about the only precaution that can be taken to prevent being robbed by these roaming vagabonds is to be eternally vigilant and keep your premises securely fastened, especially on dark, stormy nights.

Runaway.

A lively runaway occurred on Water street Thursday night. As Mr. Wm. Hile, an employee of the Singer Sewing machine agency, was driving out towards the water works, a crowd of boys rushed down over the embankment to the street, a few rods below the bridge. Their sudden appearance, accompanied by a series of hoots and yells, frightened the horse badly, and off he went at terrific speed. Near the second lamp post the vehicle collided with the sidewalk, and was brought to a standstill. The driver was thrown out on his head, but received no serious injuries. The right foreleg of the horse was badly cut, and the shafts of the wagon somewhat broken.

An Enjoyable Sermon.

The services at the Episcopal church Sunday were of unusual interest, and drew together a very large congregation, many members from other churches being in attendance. The special feature of the occasion was a sermon delivered by Rev. Hewitt to Gregg Post, G. A. R., which organization was present in a body, in full uniform. The discourse was an excellent one, deeply interesting and appropriate—indeed, is pronounced, by those who heard it, one of Mr. Hewitt's ablest efforts, and the members of the Post, for whom it was expressly prepared, will ever regard it as one of the most pleasant incidents in its history.

—John Wagner, the early vegetable gardener, killed a copperhead snake at his place below town one day last week. John says it was as thick as his wrist, and made a noble fight for liberty. The wriggler was concealed in a row of peas near where Mrs. Wagner had been at work but a few moments before. This isn't a yarn.

Safe Robberies in Milesburg.

The Bald Eagle Valley seems to be infested by a gang of safe robbers, who, from their recent operations, have a pretty good understanding of the use of burglars' tools, as applied to safes. The crew is evidently moving up the valley in the direction of Tyrone, and on Tuesday night made Milesburg the scene of their operations. The office in the grist mill of John M. Wagner & Son was entered and the lock on the safe blown to pieces, enabling the thieves to reach the inside with little difficulty. They were not very liberally remunerated for their labor, however, as the safe contained only about five dollars in money.

Not satisfied with the result of their operations at Wagner's, the gang, on the same night, visited C. H. Else & Bro.'s drug store, in another quarter of the town. As the building is not a very substantial structure, neither the doors or windows could offer much resistance to the strong tools of the burglars, and it probably didn't require but a few moments' work to force the front door off its hinges, through which they entered. Of course the principal object of their visit was to crack the safe, and its appearance the next morning left no doubt but that they had performed the operation successfully. The door was badly shattered, and part of the casing torn off. Notwithstanding the explosion must have been severe, neither Mr. Else nor any of his family, who reside in the rear of the store, heard the report, nor did the neighbors adjoining them. An employe of Linn & McCoy's iron works, in passing by the store at 2 o'clock in the morning on his way to the works, heard a noise inside the building, but supposing somebody had been taken sick in the night and had visited the store for medicine, did not stop to investigate. This last safe, like the first one operated upon, contained but a very few dollars, and a few more nights of such work will send the crew to the poor house.

Just where these worthies will strike next of course nobody knows, but it is not to be supposed that they will give Bellefonte the go-by, and in view of this perhaps it would be a good plan for our merchants and bankers to make their premises doubly secure until this section of country is rid of the presence of this brace of "swag" hunters.

LATER.

Since writing the above we learn that the safe in Else's drug store did not contain any money at all. A small box, containing some private papers belonging to Mr. P. B. Else, and valuable to no one else, was found in an alley near the canal, where it had been thrown. With this exception nothing has been missed from the safe. The money which the robbers possessed themselves of amounted in all to about $10, and was taken from a drawer beneath the counter. Of this sum $9 belonged to the Methodist church, so that Else & Bro. lost but $1. A number of tools taken from Bullock's blacksmith shop, which seems to be headquarters for burglars, were found Wednesday.

—No one would imagine, to see our Democratic and Republican legal brethren gamboling on the green in the Court House yard on an afternoon, that anything could induce them to mount the platform and denounce each other as a liar, villian and a horse thief. And yet, when it comes to electing a President, that's about the size of their friendship. Things are not what they seem in this world, no indeedy.

—Mr. A. J. Smith, formerly of Port Matilda, where he was engaged for a number of years in the mercantile business, and from which place he removed last fall to New Millport, Clearfield county, was in town on Thursday transacting some private business. Of course Mr. S. did not forget to show his cheerful "phiz." inside our sanctum door.

—We hear some complaint made because of the number of maliciously-disposed dogs allowed to run at large within the borough limits. If the owners of these ferocious cannines do not confine them within their yards more closely, it is quite likely that some of them (the dogs) will be treated to a dose of cold lead one of these nights.

—A pleasant social gathering, of a few intimate friends, was that which assembled at the handsome residence of Mr. William Humes, in Coleville, Friday evening, the guests of his two accomplished daughters, Misses Carrie and Rachel. Those who were fortunate enough to be present report having an excellent time.

—Are there any handsomer towns in the State than Clearfield, in the summer time?—[Raftman's Journal. We don't like to hurt the Journal man's feelings, but it is nevertheless an acknowledged fact that Bellefonte is a "leetle the purtiest" burg in the State. Ask us something easier.

Large Funeral.

The funeral of the late Henry Miller took place Thursday morning from the house, and the remains consigned to their last resting place in the Union cemetery. The funeral was the largest that has occurred in Bellefonte for several years, the procession being nearly half a mile in length, and containing fifty-six carriages. The Odd Fellows, of which lodge deceased was a prominent member, attended the funeral in a body, each member wearing the badge of the order.

At an early hour the members assembled at the hall to perfect arrangements for attending, and at half-past nine marched to the intersection of Spring and Bishop streets where the procession was met. The lodge was consigned to the position of escort, marching two by two before the chief mourners, under the marshalship of H. H. Benner. At the grave the officiating clergyman, Rev. Delong, opened the services with prayer, which was responded to by Mr. D. M. Wolf, of Spring Mills. The ceremonies were then taken charge of by the Lodge, conducted by Past Grand Dr. George Harris and Noble Grand J. C. Brachbill. The funeral ceremonies of the order are beautiful and affecting. A pleasing feature of the ceremony was the depositing of a sprig of evergreen, by each member, on the grave, according to the custom of the lodge.

A procession of this kind is no uncommon spectacle, but when the Court House bell began tolling, announcing that the body had started, quite a large number of people had collected on Allegheny street to witness the passage of the funeral cortege through town.

Pennsylvania Reserves.

A meeting of the survivors of the Pennsylvania Reserves was held in the Court House last evening. The meeting was called to order, and on motion Col. A. M. Smith was chosen president and A. L. Crist secretary. The object of the meeting was the purpose of taking some steps in regard to raising funds towards the erection of a monument to the memory of Gen. Reynolds, and to attend the contemplated reunion of the Reserves at Bellefonte. Stoughton George moved that a committee be appointed to send out a circular to members of the Reserves on the list, requesting them to contribute to the erection of the monument to the memory of Gen. Reynolds, in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. Carried. It was moved that the secretary of the meeting notify the members of the Reserves on the list of a preliminary meeting to make arrangements for the reunion at Bellefonte, if such should be held the call to be made by the president of this meeting. The following gentlemen were appointed a monument committee: Messrs S. George, A. L. Crist and Firm Kirk.—[Williamsport Banner.

The Mill Hall Furnace.

Captain Austin Curtin, general manager of the Roland Furnace Co., gave the Journal a pleasant call the other day. This company has leased for a term of years the Mill Hall furnace property, which is being put in repair as speedily as possible for extensive operations. We are glad to know that a great deal of Clinton county ore (brown hemetite) will be used at the works, and the fortunate owners of this valuable production can go to work and develop immediately.

The blowing cylinders have arrived, and more machinery will come from day to day. The engine will be 65 horse power, and Messrs. McClanahan, Stone & Co., of Holidaysburg, will build it. The foundations are dug out, and measurements for the walls will be made on Thursday. The casting house is up, and an office is being fitted out. Capt. Curtin is a man of ripe business experience, and we welcome him to our county.—[L. H. Journal.

Stranded on a Stone Pile.

We learn that a lady and gentleman, while driving from Jacksonville to Bellefonte on Friday night, collided with a big stone heap somewhere along the road, which came very near resulting in a first-class upset. The buggy careened to one side, the driver popped over the dashboard, and his gentle companion did just what hundreds of others of her sex would have done under similar circumstances—jumped out and screamed, and for about four minutes a terrible scene of confusion reigned, which, happily, all ended in nobody being hurt. The parties both reside in Bellefonte, and their social standing is not to be questioned. But as the night was not dark the inference to be drawn from the matter is that the couple must have been engaged in some deeply interesting proceedings not to see a stone heap in front of them as big as a box car. Yah, ha!

But, then, when young people go out buggy-riding it is not to be supposed that they shall devote their whole attention to hunting up obstructions in the road. That's not the object of the ride.

Saw Mill Burned.

At an early hour on Friday morning last the large double mill of Hoover, Hughes & Co., located at North Houtzdale, was totally destroyed by fire. The Philipsburg Journal says:

"These mills, in addition to the regular machinery required for the manufacture of lumber and shingles, also had a complete outfit to manufacture boxes of all kinds and nail kegs, being all completed in a most thorough manner at a cost of $18,000. An insurance of $13,250 covers the loss partially, but the delay caused by the interruption of business is much more serious than the deficit on the cost of the building and machinery. Just thirteen months ago, a new mill just completed and ready for operation on the same foundation on which the present mill was located, was destroyed by fire, and now the present loss makes it doubly severe and discouraging to these enterprising lumber operations. As we go to press on Friday afternoon we are unable to give a full account of the fire."

Assaulted in the Dark.

About eleven o'clock on Sunday night as Isaac Lose, Jr., the livery man, was on his way to his stable, in the rear of the Bush House, some fellow lying in wait stepped up from behind him and dealt him a sledge-hammer blow in his face, knocking him down. As the night was quite dark he was unable to discover who his assailant was. Mr. Lose says that he has never, to his knowledge, gave any one cause to commit such an assault upon him, and is somewhat inclined to think that the attacking party mistook him for another person.

Suspicion rests on one or two parties, who it is said will be arrested and made to give an account of their whereabouts at the time the assault was committed.

—The Altoona Tribune says the following item, which is going the rounds of the press, is incorrect: "The Pennsylvania Legislature has kindly remembered the school teachers of the Commonwealth by passing a bill making it obligatory upon school directors to allow the teachers their time while attending the annual county institute and $2.50 per day for expenses." In view of this contradiction the Legislature ought to adjourn immediately, or it may get mobbed.

—Mr. Joseph Baker, of College township, met with quite an accident a short time since, the particulars of which were sent to us at the time but were mislaid. While leading a frisky three-year-old colt to water it became unmanageable, wheeled around suddenly and planted his hoofs square in Mr. Baker's face. The flesh was badly cut and mutilated, but, fortunately, no bones were broken.
